

INDIAN SPIRITS WERE A PLENTY

Dr. Wustrow Gives Audience Messages from "Pawnee" and Oconomowoc.

With thirty men, women and children present, at the second Dr. H. Wustrow of Whitefish Bay continued his spiritualistic meetings at the East Side Odd Fellows hall, Sunday evening, giving a message to each of those in the audience. The congregation sat in silence for several minutes concentrating on those who had passed out, with feet placed firmly on the floor and joined with hands in a circle.

Before the individual messages were given, Dr. Wustrow gave one to the audience from "Chief Pawnee" who said, "I am very glad to see that I can speak before you this afternoon. Message from the spirit world. I am Chief Pawnee. I had a wigwam in this vicinity long years ago. In it I lived with my squaw and many children. I knew nothing of the truth then but now here on the other side I see and realize it and urge you to profit by my example."

WILL GO TO CONGRESS

The most fortunate of those whom he delivered messages was a married man who said he could see him standing in a full dress suit with scapular in his hand. The audience laughed at the sceptic. He was in a great white building. "The scepter in your hand is an important message of peace," he said. Wustrow, "and where you will carry to Washington in place before Congress." He declared that the people of his district would send this man to Congress at the next election. To a middle aged, very stout woman he said she would in two years be a medium like him.

A Journey South

He told one woman that she came with a question pertaining to her mother and told her that she would take a short journey to the south soon. After she reached her destination she would return a small distance south and then a short way east. There she said, she saw a small farm with a little red farmhouse. It was a friend of hers and they would tell her the things which she wished to know, and that she would also find the papers. He declared he saw the farm pass into possession soon. This message he told her came from a distant cousin who had long passed out as a small child.

Another Indian Chief

An old man was given a message by Dr. Wustrow from an Indian Chief, Oconomowoc, who said his grandfather and whom the old gentleman failed to recognize. He told him to keep the message in his mind so that it would soon be clear to him.

A dark-haired man who acted as usher at the meeting and whom Dr. Wustrow called "Moss" said that it would be all right for him to go to New York and study there. That he should go to Eusekia and Sarah and to tell the latter that it would not be wise to be married immediately but to wait a few months. And to him he said he should not make the move which he was contemplating, but to wait until September. Then all would be well.

TOO MANY PRESENT

Many present thanked him for his cheering messages from the spirit world and declared that he had been greatly helped by his messages. Others did not comprehend the message or recognize from whom they came and he explained that the usually large audience was a severe strain on his psychic powers and the messages which he received from those who had "passed out" were not as clear and as detailed to him, but offered to arrange by special appointment to give a private sitting those who wished. He said the average audience for a seance was 15. He will conduct his next week meetings at either the Oddfellows Hall or a private residence.

MANY HERE SEEK TO LEARN FRENCH

Forty people received French vocabularies from the Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau, Fredric Haskin, director, Washington, D. C.; during the week ending November 10. Fifty-five pamphlets on "School Child Health," "Care of Food in the Home," "League of Nations," "Cannibalism," "Practical Care," "Meat on the Farm," "Common Cold," "Soviet Government," Political books, 17 of these for Motor books, were sent out by request by the Bureau.

"SKIPPING" SCHOOL COSTLY TO BOY, 14

A blow at willful and habitual truancy from school was administered Saturday, when a 14-year-old Edgerton boy was committed to the state normal school for boys at Winona until he becomes 18. All efforts to get the boy to go to school regularly have failed, it was testified by Capt. Fred Edgerton, Chief E. J. Springer, who has been called into the case but has no warrant. The parents of the boy appeared, admitting their warnings had been to no avail.

The same boy was brought to Janesville a year ago in connection with stealing in the Tobacco city. At that time he was given "another chance."

CHURCH TO RAISE $13,000 FOR 1921

Members of the First Congregational church passed a single budget for $13,000 representing the amount to be raised by the church for both expense and benevolent work. This is the largest budget in the history of the church and was passed by vote of the members during the Sunday morning services.

Under the single budget allocation schedule there was $8,000 raised for church expenses and $5,000 for the church's share of the state share in benevolent work. The amount for charity and missionary work is by far the largest schedule attempted by the congregation.

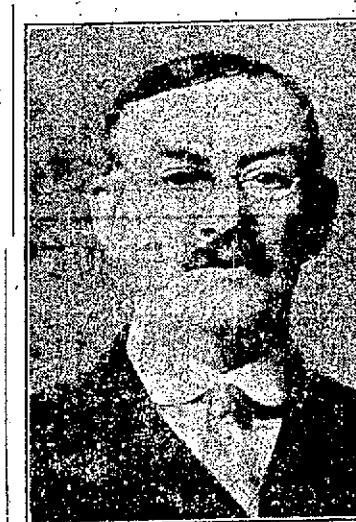

Members of the trust board explained that the work being over, attention must now be turned to the more energy and effort to the foreign mission field. Explanation of the budget amounts were made by H. S. Lovejoy, L. A. Markham and W. W. Dale.

It is expected that the significance of the sale of the DuPont stock to the DuPont interests and its effect on the affairs of the G. M. will be detailed by the speakers at the New York meeting.

Retires After 42 Years As Railway Mail Clerk

AS A RULE holidays have no time for postal clerks as they mean busy days with extra hours, with hurried or cold lunches. However, this year, for the first time in 12 years, J. C. Harlow, 52, North Washington street, gave up Thanksgiving day at home without being subject to call. His recent retirement from the United States mail service made this possible.

Many friends remember Mr. Harlow's entrance to the railway mail service in February, 1878, at the age of 20, his appointment being given during Rutherford B. Hayes of Ohio was president. A year later his father and brother presented him with a watch he has carried on his belt for Uncle Sam more than a million miles, as his runs averaged 300 miles daily.

Ran From Milwaukee

His first run was from Milwaukee to North McGregor and this was kept for two years, he being assigned as route agent grade one. Later he was transferred to Chicago to La Crosse and the nomenclature of the service having been changed, he was one of six clerks in the car. Thirty years ago he was appointed clerk in charge from Chicago to Winona, Minn., runs taken him to Minneapolis, St. Paul, La Crosse, Elroy, and Dubuque.

In Several Accidents

Eight or nine accidents of more or less seriousness have occurred in the 42 years. In May, 1894, he was injured and at home shortly as the result of a head collision with his train, Chicago to St. Paul. Nu-Orion, Chicago, two miles east of Menominee Junction, Wis. The tender of the locomotive passed entirely through the mail car, splitting it to end, completely demolishing it.

Tells Unique Stories

Olecran Harlow was imprisoned in Chicago nearly an hour before being liberated. The bones in the right hand were broken and the tip of one finger gone, his arm lame. His head bruised and cut. A track was laid across the walk and after a drag of seven hours the train proceeded to Chicago without a mail car, but Harlow accompanied his through registered mail on the train.

Class Basket Practice Starts at High School Today

ANNUAL CLASHES WILL BE PLAYED EARLY NEXT WEEK

Practice for class basketball starts at the high school this afternoon. Each class will have 30 minutes each afternoon this week in the high gymnasium to get ready for the interclass games that are scheduled to start next week.

It will not be known until after tonight how many men will be out for the team this year. Indications are that there will be a good number of fast players to make one of the best basketball teams that has represented the school in several years.

First Game Dec. 6.

The first of the interclass games will take place on Monday, December 6. It will be between the Freshmen and the Juniors. The seniors and sophomores will battle on Tuesday, the eighth. The winner of the first game will play the winners of the second on the ninth for the championship of the school. The champs will take on the faculty on Thursday, December 11. These games will be played at the high school gym at 8:15.

Students practice for the school team will start Friday, the tenth. While the schedule has not yet been completed, the first game will take place on December 17. The team to be played has not yet been decided.

NAVY WHIPS ARMY SATURDAY BY 7 TO 0

New York, Nov. 29.—The Navy cleverly trounced the West Point cadets on the Polo grounds Saturday evening in the annual struggle between the ice-scouts and the foot-soldiers. The final score was 7 to 0, the Annapolis lads grabbing victory on a touchdown just after the final period opened. Close to 40,000 viewed the spectacle.

The West Point cadets entered 1,000 strong at 1:30 p. m., and received a tumultuous reception from a loud roar sent up by the vast crowd at the arrival of "Black Jack" Pershing, who was followed by movie operators. He took a box in front of the West Point cadets, who greeted him with a West Point yell. The crowd joined in the cheer.

The middies' delegation did not arrive in time for the kickoff. The stands by this time were jammed and the middies were more noisily greeted than the West Pointers. They made a great showing, marching around to the south wing.

ARMY IS PRAISED BY SECY. BAKER

Last Annual Report Made by the Secretary of War to Congress.

(By Associated Press.) Washington, Nov. 29.—The post-war reorganization of the army marks a new era in the history of the country. Secretary Baker defines his annual report made public today as providing an effective model on which great armies could be swiftly built in times of emergency.

Reviewing the military activities of the nation since 1776, Secretary Baker says that although the Service "has never peace-loving or militant" it had been engaged in major domestic or foreign wars about one out of every four years during that period and that the military power of the country had been in active use in war and military operations of some kind about three out of every four years.

"It is apparent, therefore, that while we do not need a great standing army we must live in the world as it is while we struggle to see what it is to do." Baker says.

"We must have a body of trained men large enough in numbers to be an effective working model upon which great armies can be swiftly built in event of emergency."

"It is for preparations now."

"It is also possible we may be forced into a state of necessity to resort to war, but it has no right to ask its sons to fight its battles out-armed and out-shielded by an adversary."

In studying the lessons of the world war the war department has proceeded on the theory that the infantry remained the backbone of the army, the report said, although the importance of other arms of the service had been greatly increased by the swift developments of war.

"Profound and fundamental changes in armament were introduced and many of the instrumentalities devised are apparently only in the beginning of their development," said the secretary.

"The infantry itself is no longer the foot-soldier with the musket but the foot-soldier with the long-range, high-power repeating rifle, the automatic rifle and the machine gun, which, in some of its uses, is analogous to light artillery. The advance of the infantry is no longer to be measured by the speed of the rifle but by the path of the advance must be cleared of obstructions and its position, once attained, must be protected by artillery of great power and extreme mobility."

National Guard

This precision, Mr. Baker declares, will do much to prevent antagonism which have in the past been the attitude toward the country and the country's attitude toward it. The extent to which a new era has dawned for the army is shown by recruiting. The difficulty in securing the necessary enlistments.

"The army is essentially a new army." Mr. Baker continues, "not merely another army but one which exists in the air, but new in its attitude toward the country and the country's attitude toward it. The extent to which a new era has dawned for the army is shown by recruiting. The difficulty in securing the necessary enlistments.

BASEBALL TIPS

Milwaukee, Wis.—The Milwaukee American association baseball team will train for the 1921 season at Gulfport, Miss. It was announced by Otto Borcher, president of the Brewers.

St. Louis, Mo.—The release of three infield recruits to minor league clubs was announced by officials of the St. Louis Americans. Gene Robertson, who was with Columbus and Joplin, Mo., last year, returns to "the latter." William Miller, of St. Paul, and Cullen, and Paul Enerwear, of Iron Flit, Mich., go to Mobile, Southern association.

Los Angeles, Cal.—According to a report here, Danny Long, White Sox scout, has discovered such a promising southpaw at Salt Lake City that he has offered $1000 a month to attach his signature to a Chicago contract.

The find is Walter Schmidt, whose record for the year just ended stands at nineteen won, of thirty-two games pitched.

New York.—Because, he declares, he holds the welfare of baseball more sacred than vindication in petty squabbles with hired help, Col. Jacob Ruppert thinks it best to leave unanswered for the time the insinuations of President Dan Johnson of the American League that he (Ruppert) and his partner, Col. Fred Van Orden, of New York, are engaged in promotion of syndicate baseball, contrary to the constitution of the American League.

For the distance runs will be W. W. Ward, Dayton of Rhinehander, track and cross country man, who was placed in nearly all meets in which he has been entered; Henry O'Donnell of Canton, Ohio, and the Wellington Brothers, of Evanston, Ill., captain of this year's country team, all of whom will be entered in the two-mile run.

Two Old "W" Men

For the half mile, will be Mark H. Wall of Eau Claire, and Clyde Nash of Eau Claire, both members.

Wall was in the cross country team this year, while last year he was in the track performance.

He has proven to be an almost certain point winner in any of the events.

This was complete upset as the Staleys were conceded an easy victory.

The Cardinals outplayed their opponents at all times.

Both teams showed brilliant work.

The Staleys displayed the best work at end seen here for some time.

Sundt Broad Jumper

In the hurdles A. J. Knollin of Pocatello, Idaho, and A. B. Shockey of Milwaukee, were the outstanding performers.

Long the broad jump was Guy Sundt of Stoughton, captain elect of the 1921 track team. Sundt is said to be the greatest all around athlete Wisconsin has ever had. H. W. Armstrong of Muskego, Mich., will run in the 220 yard dash and will be the top man.

The weights will be handled by Sundt, J. J. Listovka of La Crosse, and Malcolm Mecartney of Hillsdale, Ill.

For the pole vault Dale Morrison of Eldora, Ia., E. F. Snider of Sheboygan and L. L. Wilder of Evansville are contenders.

Champion Endurance Walker Dies at Philadelphia

(By Associated Press.)

Chicago, Nov. 29.—An earthquake of moderate intensity was recorded this morning by the seismograph at the University of Chicago, which reported that the center of disturbance was 2,970 miles away. It was said the location was probably on the northern Pacific coast. The tremor lasted about one and a half minutes.

Spetz and Kelsey of Stevens Point will run the 220 yard dash with Spetz and W. J. Fukard of Evanston, Ill. Kelsey will figure prominently in the 100 yard dash with Spetz again to be counted on.

Roslyn, N. Y., Nov. 29.—The short fourteenth hole on the golf course of the Engineers' Country club here, considered to be one of the most frequent in the country, is to be reconstructed.

The club has been winning a number of stars in many tournaments, and proved to be the fatal obstacle for many promising contenders in the national amateur championship tournament held on the links last fall.

The weights will be handled by Sundt, J. J. Listovka of La Crosse, and Malcolm Mecartney of Hillsdale, Ill.

Philadelphia, Nov. 29.—The funeral of John A. Glick, a noted six day pedestrian champion and six day bicycle racer, was held here today.

Glick, who was 55 years old, was widely known in the athletic world until his retirement about 15 years ago.

He died Saturday morning at Orange, Texas, it was announced yesterday. Pre-season games will be arranged with the Philadelphia Americans, who will train at Lake Charles, La., it was said.

JURY FOR BUILDING TRUST PROBE DRAWN

(By Associated Press.)

New York, Nov. 29.—A grand jury convened by the U. S. Senate legislative committee investigating the "building trust" was begun today before Supreme Court Justice McAvoy.

Samuel Untermyer, chief counsel for the committee, indicated a request to Gov. Al Smith, of New York, that a grand jury should be made within a short time.

"The mass of evidence accumulated by the committee was declared to assure several weeks work for two grand juries in addition to the present jury, which has returned several indictments. Selection of a panel to try George E. Kilpatrick, my builder, charged with conspiracy, was concluded before Judge Rosinsky in the court of general sessions today.

CHIEF WITNESS IN RYAN CASE LOCATED

William Cronin was in Los Angeles, Calif., Tuesday, Gazette finds.

POLICEMAN STEIN WANTS TO GIVE AWAY A CHICKEN

A perfectly good Rhode Island Red chicken will go to roost tonight in back of Officer Patrick Stein's home, 419 South Washington street, unless someone claims it before roosting time. It isn't Pat's chicken, nevertheless he didn't steal it.

Information furnished to Dist. Atty S. G. Dunwiddie by the Gazette today may lead to the location of William J. Cronin, sought as the chief witness in the case against Ryan, Ryan charged with an assault on policeman Patrick Stein.

Cronin was in Los Angeles, Calif., last Tuesday, according to information received by the Gazette and turned over to the district attorney. Cronin is a Chicago Chamber of Commerce news bureau which sends out the names of visitors to the California Exposition to the newspapers in their home towns. It appears that Cronin registered at the Exposition on November 23 and gave his address as Janesville.

At the opening of circuit court at 2 o'clock this afternoon, Mr. Dunwiddie announced that he would present second affidavit in the Ryan case at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning. This is taken to mean that he will ask for immediate trial on the grounds that the chief witness can be found.

PNEUMONIA FATAL TO C. W. JACKMAN, BANK OFFICIAL

Clarence W. Jackman, 67, vice president of the Rock County National bank, died at 10:30 o'clock last night at his home, 117 South Division street. He had been ill with pneumonia just one week.

The youngest son of the late Timon Jackman, he spent his entire life in Janesville. For many years he was president of the old Janesville Carriage company, which was located in the building now occupied by the Samson Engineering department. He retired from active business five years ago but retained management of the Jackman building and other real estate until his sudden death.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Leahretta K. McDougal; one son, Attorney Ralph Jackman, Madison; and a brother, Clarence S. Jackman, Milwaukee. Religious services will be held at the home at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. Rev. Henry Willmann officiating. Interment will be at Forest Hill cemetery, Madison. Friends are requested to omit flowers.

WEST TELLS HOW TO PRUNE GRAPE VINES

In response to questions as to when and how to prune grape vines, Allen B. West, instructor in agriculture at the local high school, explains that now is the right time, and goes on to tell how it should be done:

"It is much easier to trim grape vines on a blackboard than in the garden. One can make the vines grow on the blackboard as to make pruning easy, but they don't grow naturally that way. Pruning after year, however, makes the vine stronger, following years."

"There are several systems of pruning, but this is a good one for this region:

"Select about four long, thrifty canes of this year's growth. Let these canes grow from short arms of the trunk. These arms should not be more than four feet from the trunk of the vine. Cut away all other wood, old and new, except from other canes that grow from the branches near the trunk."

"Now strip off all shoots from the first four selected canes back to about the tenth bud. Cut back to the buds, back to two or three buds and the dead is done. The first four canes will bear all the fruiting spurs the vine can furnish food for, and the second four stubs will produce the renewal canes for next year."

"After the vines are pruned, lay them down, pinning if necessary, and cover with dirt. Dirt is preferable although cornstalks, marsh hay, straw or waste from the sorghum mill are good."

Mr. West has furnished several grape growers with copies of the U. S. Farmers' Bulletin 474, "Grape Propagation, Planting and Training," and will furnish it to any others who will notify him.

GLASS, WHO ESCAPED DEATH AT STOUGHTON HAS HOME HERE

William Glass, the engineer and manager of the Stoughton Marketing Co., who had a miraculous escape from death in the boiler explosion last week, is a resident of Janesville and has a home at 314 Court street.

He was formerly manager of the Glass plant, but has been at Stoughton since May 1st, where the plant was moved when the farmers joined the Chicago Marketing company. Glass who is recovering from the scalds and bruises received in the accident will continue as manager of the plant. Miss Anna Thompson, a deputy of the A. O. U. W. was in Stoughton Thanksgiving Day to assist in the arrangements for the funeral of G. E. Ferguson.

ANTI-JAZZ DANCE MOVE ON AT U. W.

Modern Music Degrading, Says Dean of Women at University.

Janesville Daily Gazette

In Wisconsin

Eau Claire.—Two boys and a man were killed and four persons injured one seriously, in a collision between a motor car and an Omaha line passenger train on a crossing near Clear Lake. J. C. Johnson's two sons, aged 10 and 12, and Mrs. John Johnson, their little daughter, and Mrs. Johnson's brother were injured, the latter seriously. The driver of the car did not heed the signal and was in the center of the tracks when struck.

Madison.—Wild northwoods deer proved wilder than usual when Gov. error-elect John T. Morgan, of the sky creatures of the forest, shot a buck at 10 o'clock last night. Nothing in the office was disturbed except the safe. Police say the office was entered by someone during the night, but nothing of a forced entrance.

The robbery was discovered about 10 o'clock last night. Nothing in the office was disturbed except the safe. Police say the office was entered by someone during the night, but nothing of a forced entrance.

Police hold that either the safe was closed but not locked, or that it was locked, someone opened it by working the combination.

Action is to be taken through girls organizations to create sentiment unfavorable to the more popular forms of stepping and light fantastic dances. The Women's Self Government association; the Motor Board, honorary senior women's organization; Crucible, honorary junior woman's organization, and the Student Sonata all have taken action.

Fraternities and sororities will be asked to create committees responsible for censoring dances.

Miss Nardin will recommend that a committee be empowered to warn who are to present the dance and that they continue to eject them from the dance floor. It has been suggested that the saxophone and the clarinet be eliminated from the orchestra which furnish music for the dances.

MILWAUKEE HERO SEEKS DIVORCE FROM RUSSIAN PRINCESS

Milwaukee, Nov. 29.—Captain Wallace Schutz, hero and prominent engineer and clubman of Milwaukee and Green Bay, who few months ago acquired Russian princess Nadezhda Troubetskoy, is to be the most beautiful Bed Cross nurse in Europe, has filed a complaint for divorce at Green Bay. It became known here today.

The action for divorce is based on the accusation that the princess has a favorite husband, Victor A. Turin, at one time an officer in the Imperial Russian guard, credited with being dead, but who is now discovered to be alive and residing in New York state.

The plaintiff recites in his complaint that no divorce decree has ever been awarded the princess for her former marriage.

A MILK ORDINANCE.

The news in the Gazette, Saturday, that a milk ordinance was to be presented to the city council for action by that body marks another step in the efforts to take those precautionary measures to secure the city from any possible menace to health through impure or germ-laden milk. Perhaps no city in the state operating without a milk ordinance has better milk than Janesville, or dealers who have more careful processes for preparation and sale. But there is need of that examination of the milk under the law that will insure a pure supply, coming from sanitary stables, herds examined and free from tuberculosis. That can only be done with the backing of a milk ordinance regulating these things.

GREECE, THE LEAGUE AND HER KINGS.

When Greece acquired her independence in 1830 and with the aid of Europe threw off the Turkish rule of 400 years, a king was selected from Bavaria. He was deposed and William, son of Christian IX of Denmark, then 17 years of age, was placed on the throne, assuming the name of George I. He married a cousin of the Czar of Russia, Olga. She is now the Queen regent of Greece. A brother of George was afterward King of Denmark, and the present king is a cousin of Constantine, son of George, deposed by Venizelos. George's sister is Alexandra, mother of George V of England, and another sister was Dagmar, mother of the Czar Nicholas. Still another married the British Duke of Cumberland who was more German than English. The mother of George of Greece was a daughter of the Landgrave of Hesse-Cassel, a German principality. So it is readily seen how thoroughly mixed up are these rulers, some dead and others deposed, but still factors in European entanglements.

But Greece is still more mixed in relationships with royal. Constantine, who came to the Greek throne after the assassination of King George at Salona, married Sophie, a daughter of Victoria, who was the eldest daughter of Queen Victoria, of England, and sister-in-law of Alexandra, wife of Constantine, and sister of the then Kaiser Wilhelm. He was, therefore, doubly related by family ties to the then reigning houses of England, of Denmark, of Russia and of Germany.

This influence of royalty is felt in the assembly of the league. It is the sort of thing that the United States can afford to be far from and not mixed up with at all. It is a thing far away from American thought and principles inculcated with the constitution. If the people of Greece want Constantine, with all his royal blood and his pro-German wife, we are content in the United States. It is none of our business here in America. The people of Greece have voted against Venizelos and in favor of the regime of royalty.
That is the right of self-determination, as well as one of the late, lamented 14 points. But the Greek situation only emphasizes the wisdom of the Fathers of the Republic in repeatedly asking that we keep out of all European messes.

From the outline of work proposed to be done and the things to be accomplished by the Chamber of Commerce, by the manager, Mr. Holman, the coming year is to have a new story of achievement for that body of citizens. In the month that Mr. Holman has been in the city he has reorganized the Chamber into a living thing and removed many obstacles which were interfering with successful accomplishment.

In its new program the American Society of Equity will refuse to allow political campaigns to enter as a factor. It will not allow a member to be a candidate on an Equity platform. The American Farm Bureau is of the same mind. The only political organization in the state will be the nonpartisan league.

"The United States has the men and the money and the spirit to make an ideal mandatory," said Mr. Balfour of England at the meeting of the League assembly. We ask then why not make the United States mandatory of Ireland? There seems to be great need there.

The Big Four railroad announces the immediate commencement of a program of expenditure of $15,000,000 in new equipment and betterments, both in trackage and in the general physical improvement of the property. If other railroads will follow that example it will add materially to solve the labor problem.

Plant trees along the country roads. Every town and community and the owners of property the beauty, but to the value of property with trees growing on the highways.

Golden Gate Park

By FREDERIC J. BASKIN

San Francisco, Calif., Nov. 29.—Golden Gate Park in San Francisco enjoys not only the worshipful homage of all Californians, but worldwide fame as well. Many Europeans and Asiatics who have never heard of the California redwoods or the Yosemite Valley know all about this park, and hurry out to see it as soon as they arrive in San Francisco.

For Golden Gate Park, with all its "natural" beauty—its lakes and hills and wooded islands—is a made park, created entirely by the park commissioners of San Francisco since 1870. Before that date, the spaces now containing the park was a mere expanse of sand dunes stretching desolately down to the Pacific Ocean. Certainly not an encouraging prospect for a park, but the city had its own reasons for locating it there. For one thing the property then was not as valuable as that in other sections of the city, and the adjustment of land titles, it was thought, would be an easy matter. As it happened, many greedy land-owners attempted to interfere with the enterprise, but the city finally bought 1,013 acres of the dunes at the price of $800,000.

Once in possession of the tract, the park commissioners immediately started their comprehensive scheme for improving it. It was a courageous park commission. Hampered like most such institutions by lack of funds, every step of its work was rendered difficult. The necessary supplies of loan and fertilizing material were obtained only after much agitation, and then an independent water supply had to be fought for. While the San Franciscans of today insist that they always knew the park would turn out to be the handsome thing that it is, and that they were enthusiastic about it from the very beginning, the park records show that popular interest in those early days was very slim. Perhaps this was only natural, since what the landscape artist saw in the mind's eye was by no means visible to the ordinary citizen.

According to Superintendent John McLaren, who lives in the park, and has been engaged in developing it for many years, the sand dunes, in the beginning, stubbornly resisted reclamation. Lupins and barley were planted, but these would not hold the sand. Grass seed was then imported from France, which proved its efficiency at once. The leguminous grass, which flourishes so extensively along the European Coast, was also used with gratifying success. This grass requires little moisture and no manure, but it is a wonderful moisture catcher and holder of the sand. With its aid, the drifting sands were held in check until the Monterey cypress and other branches of the pine family were able to lend their assistance in holding down the land. In due time the meadows were sown with Kentucky blue grass, and on the hillsides madrone, manzanita, laurel and other native trees took hold.

Today, there is little evidence of this early struggle. Shrubs, hedges and trees have been planted with such cleverness that Nature herself must sometimes be deceived into thinking that she put them there. Palm and pepper trees do not dominate the scene, as they do in southern California. The eucalyptus tree—that queer, independent giant, which grows by leaps and bounds and sheds its leaves whenever it feels like it, instead of waiting for a definite season—is, of course, much in evidence, but so are huge-leaved sycamores and poplars and silver maples.

Stretching in an irregular line across the park from northeast to southwest, is a chain of lakes, which add marvelously to the charm of the landscape. So gently rounded are the shore curves, so irregular the inlets and so thickly wooded the islands in some of the lakes, that no one would dream they had been first designed on paper and brought into being by landscape engineers.

"Work on the largest lake," explained Mr. McLaren in discussing the lake chain, "required the excavation and removal of 35,000 cubic yards of material, and the deposit of the earth and sand in pounds and ridges 300 feet from the water."

Along the margin of this lake there is a wide, smooth and extremely popular driveway. A special Lovers' Lane has been provided in the park, and the lovers, with their usual talent for finding soulful scenery, prefer this driveway instead. In the evening, apparently hypnotized by the view, Well, the light of the water is inspiring, and the seven little islands floating on the surface of the lake, bearing tall birches and pine trees, with an undergrowth of rhododendron, ferns and alders, create an enchanting atmosphere.

Golden Gate Park has long been the special darling of San Franciscans, philanthropists. Because it is so beautiful, perhaps, every millionaire of any consequence has wanted to have his name emblazoned there. The great center of popular interest, for instance, is the Temple of Music in Concert Valley, which was given to the park by the late Claus Spreckels, known as the Sugar King. It is in the Italian Renaissance design, the chief material used being Colusa sandstone of an agreeable light color and of great hardness. The central structure has a frontage of 55 feet, is 70 feet high and is flanked on either side by Corinthian columns. It contains a large, semi-circular niche or band stand, with a capacity of 100 musicians. Extending on each side are colonnades 52 feet high and 15 feet wide, each colonnade being supported by 18 Ionic columns.

Front of this temple thousands of people sit on Sundays and holidays to listen to band concerts. The seats are arranged in rows under a heavy canopy of foliage of short sycamore trees, whose branches have been clipped in the shape of wide umbrellas.

The dedication of the temple to the city was on the occasion of a seething torrent of eloquence on the part of the accepting public. Public speakers struggled for adjectives that would do proper justice to the gift.

He who gave this structure to the people has built for himself an enduring monument," began one address—and ended: "From the tombs of Nippon and Nineval, from Egyptian pyramids held today, the whole city going into mourning. The Congregational church, where the services were held, was filled and was beautifully decorated. Rev. Brown read the sermon. A quartet sang.

THIRTY-ONE YEARS AGO

Nov. 29, 1889.—There was a four million dollar fire yesterday in Boston and one at Newark, N. J. This morning, the loss was $1,000,000. The "Irene Turkey" shot was held on Paul's farm in the town of Prairie yesterday, many from this city attending.

Not far from the Temple of Music in the park is the Golden Gate Museum—the gift of Mr. H. de Young of the San Francisco Chronicle. This building, which was the Fine Arts Building of the Midwinter Fair in 1894, was bought by Mr. De Young, filled by him with a number of valuable specimens and placed in the trust of the Board of Park Commissioners. When the reporter visited the park the other day, the museum was in the process of a much-needed enlargement and exhibits were being moved from one room to another, some concealed by new, freshly-painted partitions, so that it was impossible to do them ten full justice. The Oriental collection, however, which was small enough to remain where it was, appeared to be astonishingly fine.

Not all of the philanthropists building enduring monuments in the park have chosen masonry as their material. One of them is represented by a waterfall, known as Huntington Falls. This was given by Mr. Collis P. Huntington, but Park Commissioner W. W. Stow also deserves credit. He was his idea to build a cascade from Strawberry Hill to one of the park lakes, and it was a very fine wild fowl pond, and when we got there, footsores from pushing in animal life, there were rocks and stones to be had in a quaint, little Japanese tea garden. Then there is the joy and pleasure of all San Franciscans—the park stadium, famous in park circles all over the world. It is a huge oval, embracing 30 acres and a half, a race track, a running track, a soccer track, a vaulting and jumping-in basketball court, and six football fields, a grandstand with seats for 100,000 onlookers.

The Children's Playground in the park, which has everything ever invented in the way of child-like recreation—swings, merry-go-rounds, May-poles, donkey rides, goat carts, slides and candy stores—is also the unique gift of a San Francisco philanthropist, William Sharon, who left $50,000 to the park in his will filed in 1887. Mr. Sharon did not stipulate how the amount was to be used, and at first the trustees of the estate were inclined to insist upon a massive arch or gateway, but they allowed themselves to be persuaded by the been able to improve.

Fishin' teaches me a lot! There's no sure certain spot Where I'll always catch a fish. Have to hunt it, more or less; Sometimes it comes close by, And then I'll come another day. When I'll have to work like sin. Tore I get a big one in; Change the bait, an' move along. Where the current isn't so strong. Or the wind can't blow so deep. On the pass, it's quite so deep. Then I'll chance to light. On a place where they will bite.

Fishin' teaches me to wait. Patiently an' try my bait. Lets me know what man a day. I can't always have my way. I must go to suit my whim. I must stick with patience grim. If I know that I am right. Till at last they start to bite; Times I've hooked a fishy, and Worked a hot an hour to land him. Finally I've got the boat. Then he's spit it from his throat. Jumped the hook an' got away. But that didn't spoil my day.

Learned right then from Mister Fish. I can't always have my wish. I must go to suit the way I choose. There are times I'm bound to lose. Times I'm just about to win. An' I think the prize is in. A SWEETHEART AT THIRTY

The Story of a Woman's Transformation
BY MARION RUBINCAM

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters
The Haines family live in the small village of Hainesville, and Esther, Aunt Endi, Jim's sister, considered a hopeless old maid, now she has passed her 35th birthday. There are three children—Laura, 21; James, 19, and Violet the vivacious, not quite 18.

Aunt Endi wakes up suddenly to her terrible old appearance, and Violet, tired of fainting, declares she wants to go to college.

CHAPTER VII

VIOLET HAS HER WAY

Violet cannot get away from all this. I decided it would be evil to allow that wonderful girl to grow up and spend her life in the surroundings she had been brought up in. From the adjoining kitchen came low voices, Violet's and James'. I fancied they were talking over the events of the evening, for at the door was a man who had got out a mormur. Often they studied together, but this evening the murmur of talk was more continuous than usual.

"What do you suppose they're doing?" Esther asked fretfully nodding toward the door. "I suppose it's helping him get out of his trouble," said she as she spoke. Could she see she did not want to distract him, or arose once more the anger of the early evening?

"They're only studying," I answered promptly. "It is most likely helping him get out of his trouble," said she again.

"Of course," said Esther, anxious to distract me in some way.

"I notice he does the helping."

"She's all Haines, I guess."

This was spoken with another look at the doorway after which I joined the newswoman. Esther, in common with many women, blamed the faults of the children on her husband's heredity; their virtues she attributed to her own family's influence.

"But Jim went on readvivaciously, her figure all lines of flowing grace, in spite of her badness, and if he heard, he gave no sign.

"Violet is much quicker at grasping things," I agreed with Esther.

"But James is the one who digs, I've noticed that. She will understand something that requires long effort, it's always something she can do.

Violet was quick at French, for instance. She loved to talk it; her teacher said her pronunciation was excellent.

James, on the other hand, said it made him feel foolish when he spoke it, and his accent, I know, was quite dreadful.

Old stories in English and literature were history; all these appealed to her love of stories and romance.

Junes was slow in these, but he held the hours in Latin, which he said was a scientific sort of language.

"You have to build up a sentence rule by rule like a brick wall."

And James was good at mathematics, where Vi was weak.

Between them they stood near the top of their classes.

The murmur of talk ceased, and the two children came into the room. James took a cap from the hat-rack on the wall.

"I'm going over to Dwyer's after Launa," he said. "It's too late for her to walk home alone, and Charley isn't home today."

Esther nodded, and for the first time that evening she looked pleased.

James left the house—and the air of tension relaxed at once. The storm centre had passed, temporarily at least.

"Well, got your lessons?" Jim spoke kindly lowering his paper and taking off his glasses to look at his mother.

"Yes, father." Violet answered sweetly. She took comb from her hair and fluffed it lightly around her face, a pretty, girlish gesture that somehow pleased Jim. She stood before us, so slim, so full of made waist and skirt.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON
Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young married woman and have been married two years. I was seventeen and my husband was nineteen when we were married. We lived happily until three months ago and then he left me without any cause.

I went to the city and got a position. He was gone about two months and then I received a letter from him and he said he still loved me and asked if I would forgive him and take him back.

I still loved him and could not understand his motives unless he wanted me to leave me. I forgave him and he came back. We have lived happily ever since. I know he still loves me and because he does everything to make me happy.

Do you think I did right? Do you think he will ever leave me again?

BROWN EYES.

Yes, I think you did the right thing in taking your husband back. Whether or not he will leave you again, I cannot say. It is probable, however, that he learned his lesson and will not go another of his going and trust that he will not leave you again.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: What can I do to make my finger nails grow in at the side?

What causes my nose to be red, especially when I become excited or when what can I do to stop it? I have heard that it was caused by a nasal disease. THANK YOU.

Press the sides of the nail to the finger. If you work with it once or twice a day, clipping them as you want them to go, you may find that they grow in the way you desire. It is difficult, however, to change nature's course in such a matter.

The Letters of Tessie and Joe

DEAR TESSIE:

There's a movie actor in this hotel, and at first I didn't pay any particular attention to him, not being a great believer in movie actors, but yesterday I heard he pulls down a salary of $5,000 a week every week rain or shine, and that immediately roused my interest, not to say my envy, because nobody but a bank robber or a genius can make $5,000 a week.

"This bird must be a genius," I said to myself. And after dinner when I saw him sitting on his seventh-from-the-last veranda in the most comfortable chair in the lobby, I described a couple of circles around him to see if I could guess his secret.

"But to the naked eye he didn't seem to have anything that hundreds of ambitious young Arrow Collar men couldn't duplicate with practically no effort, so, continuing the debate, said to myself, "He must be one of these guys that you can't appreciate till you start a little war of words with them and float to the higher realms on the intoxicating strains of their chintz music."

And I draped myself in the next chair on my own seventh-from-the-last veranda to put him at his ease and chirped casually, "What do you think of the election?"

A peculiar gleam lit up the mystifying mask of his beauty, and I braced my hand so's to stop his reply intelligently.

"Oh," he carols, "is the election over?"

"Five thousand iron men of the realm a week!" I thought to myself with a sudden sinking feeling. "But who am I to condemn a man on one question, so I purred sneerily, "What's your honest opinion of the League of Nations?"

"I think it's high time that somebody ought to suggest one," he comes back with sweet simplicity.

So I guess we'll have to put him in the bank robber class. Tessie, I reeled out of the hotel and prayed that a sympathetic snake would come around the corner and bite me so I could get a doctor's prescription for a shot of drug store whiskey to quiet my nerves.

In answer to your query as to whether I think prize fighting is brutal, would say that I found it so twice, once when I lost fifty dollars on the Jeffries-Johnson argument and again when I dropped twenty-five on the Willard-Dempsey disagreement. Otherwise I've found it to exert a very elevating influence. Give baby a rough kiss for me.

Aff., JOE.

WHAT SHALL I DO?

Answered by VIRGINIA PAGE

The Path to Popularity.
Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am nineteen years old. Kindly answer the following questions:

1. What does it mean when a gentleman friend, after escorting you home and both departing, pressed you with a match?

2. Is it proper for a girl to kiss him if asked by him after a month's company with him for a month?

3. What is the object or meaning of wanting to wear a girl's ring after several dates with her?

4. Is it proper for a girl to kiss him if asked by him after a month's company with him for a month?

5. To exchange rings is another phase of youthfulness. It means nothing, but often results in an unpleasant experience when the return of the ring is desired.

6. A girl should not kiss a boy after she has known him only a month.

a. "No, I will not kiss you," would be a definite answer.

b. When a girl is asked, it should be sufficient to say that you do not want to kiss the boy.

THE KITCHEN SHEARS

White even kitchen should have its own scissors for general uses, they should be thought of as thrifty equipment as well. So many times there is a ragged or unattractive piece of food which we think we will throw away. First try the scissors on it. For slicing vegetables or cutting fruit, scissors are often more economical than a knife. Some partly wilted lettuce when cut into neat ribbons with the scissors will make a delicious salad chiffonade. Hard boiled eggs, leftover or breadfruit and vegetables can quickly be cut with scissors into neat pieces for sandwiches. Sandwiches can be more economically cut with scissors than with a knife. Leftover meats can be snipped into good looking pieces, and tomatoes and peaches will squash less when "scissored" than when cut with a knife.

GRAIN

Chicago, Chicago Review. Wheat marketed half today in the wheat market. Signs of further buying for European interests had much to do with the upward tendency of prices. Both corn and oats were up, and the impending close of navigation from Canadian ports attracted some attention. Opening quotations which varied from 10¢ to 15¢ higher, with March \$1.63 $\frac{1}{2}$ to \$1.54, were followed by slight additional gains, and then something of a reaction.

Subsequently, absence of selling pressure was a much more noticeable feature, and the market acquired a new upward impetus, with a further rise of 10¢ to 12¢. The close was unsettled, 3¢ to 12¢ higher, with December \$1.66 $\frac{1}{2}$ to \$1.64 $\frac{1}{2}$, and March \$1.63 $\frac{1}{2}$.

The opening of corn values accompanied the rise of the wheat market.

After opening 3¢ to 12¢ up, including a rise of 7 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ to 7 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ corn continued to rise.

Disappointing husking returns from Illinois, together with Iowa reports of rural crop for hog feed, caused a general move to transient additional gains.

The close was 3¢ to 6¢ net higher, with May 73 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ to 73 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢.

Corn reflected a rise of 10¢ to 12¢, other grain values unchanged to 6¢ to 8¢ higher, May 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ to 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢, and showing additional firmness later.

Provisional values were affected by the action of hog and cattle.
